

Stephen Miller

Husband, Father, Architect, Chicken Coop Designer, Wonderful Human Being

Stephen Miller was 13 years old when Transverse Myelitis was diagnosed. He spent months in and out of hospitals and undergoing intense physical and occupational therapy including a 3 ½ month stint at Ohio State University's physical rehab hospital, Dodd Hall. He lived his life not knowing or meeting any other person with TM until this past year. He offers a unique perspective of growing up with a disability and how it has shaped him as an individual.

The youngest of five children, he grew up in the hills of the small southern Ohio town of Wheelersburg with his father, mother, brother, three sisters, dog Barney and parakeet Stinky. His hobbies include the outdoors, fine art, architecture, amateur boxing, general aviation and antique tractors.

Stephen is also active with his local church and community and practices architecture and building design with a firm in Springfield, Ohio.

Devoted to his family and enjoying life, Stephen resides in Jamestown, Ohio with his wife of eight years, Michelle, six-year-old daughter, Katherine, and cat, Bella. Together they take it one step at a time.
